INTRODUCTION

Plaintiff Ray Strong seeks final approval of a class settlement of this action brought on behalf of him and the class of all individuals employed by Defendants in non-exempt positions covered by the collective bargaining agreement between Sugar Workers Union No. 1, Seafarers International Union of N.A. AFL-CIO (SWU Local 1) and Defendants that worked beyond forty hours in a week and received any incentives as defined in the Settlement agreement at any time within the three year period prior to the date the action was filed or the effective date of any applicable tolling agreement.

On September 6, 2018, the Court preliminarily approved the parties' proposed settlement, conditionally certified the case as a collective action under 29 U.S.C. § 216(b), and preliminarily certified the case as a class action under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure Rule 23. Additionally, the Court appointed Rust Consulting to serve as the settlement administrator and authorized it to mail out notice and claim forms to the putative class members. Notice was subsequently provided to the class members by the Court-approved settlement administrator. The settlement administrator ultimately mailed notice packets to 438 class members, of which, only about 4% were returned as undeliverable, meaning notice reached approximately 96% of the class. Of the 438 packets mailed out, approximately 40% of the recipients returned claim forms. None of the recipients filed objections.

Having fulfilled the requirements of administering the Settlement set out in the Settlement Agreement, Plaintiff now asks the Court to certify this action as a collective action with respect to the claims alleged under the Fair Labor Standards Act (“FLSA”) and as a class action with respect to the claims alleged under state law, grant final approval of the class action settlement of the above-titled action, direct distribution of the settlement proceeds to the Settlement Class Members who timely returned valid Claim Forms to the Settlement Administrator, and approve the award of attorney fees and costs, including claims administration fees and incentive awards.

II

PROCEDURAL HISTORY OF THE CASE

On March 2, 2016, Plaintiff's counsel (hereafter "Class Counsel") sent a demand on behalf of Ray Strong and over one hundred individuals employed by Defendants alleging they had violated the overtime provision of the FLSA. (Declaration of Ace T. Tate in Support of Plaintiff's Unopposed Motion for (1) Conditional Certification (2) Preliminary Approval Certifying Class; (3) Certification of Collective and Class Counsel; (5) Preliminary Approval of Settlement and Notice Thereof; (6) Setting Schedule for Final Approval of Settlement ("Tate Dec.")¹, ¶7.) Specifically, the demand alleged a uniform policy of exclusion of multiple items of remuneration from the regular rate that were provided by a collective bargaining agreement ("CBA") between Opt-In Plaintiffs' exclusive bargaining representative, SWU Local 1 and Defendants. (Ibid.) These remunerations included shift differentials, overtime facilitator payments, meal allowances, attendance incentives and an annual Christmas Award (collectively "Incentives"). While the CBA provided daily overtime and double-time (which is not required by the FLSA) Defendants only paid it at 1.5x the employee's base rate of pay even when though employees worked beyond forty hours in a week, regardless of the receipt of any Incentives. (Ibid.) Class Counsel's demand also alleged a derivative claim pursuant to California's Unfair Competition Law.

Additionally, Class Counsel sent notice to the California Labor and Workforce Development Agency ("LWDA") alleging additional derivative state law claims under the Private Attorney General Act ("PAGA") regarding the untimely payment of wages, unlawful withholding of wages, failure to timely pay all final wages when due as well as non-compliant wage statements. (Tate Dec., ¶8.) At the end of March 2016, the parties agreed to toll the statute of limitations for Opt-In Plaintiffs in an effort to resolve the claims made in the demand without litigation. (Tate Dec., ¶9.) This agreement was limited to the individuals identified in the agreement. Thus, the statute of limitations of Putative Plaintiffs who are or were covered by the CBA were not part of this agreement and their statute of limitations continued to run. (Ibid.) Defendants provided significant informal pre-litigation discovery to Class Counsel regarding the Opt-In Plaintiffs to determine the

1 nature, scope and extent of the alleged total liability. (Ibid.)

2 Unable to resolve the issues raised in the demand, on January 30, 2017, Plaintiff filed this 3 action on behalf of himself and all similarly situated individuals, entitled Ray Strong, et. al. v. C &
 4 H Sugar Company, Inc. and American Sugar Refining, Inc., Case No. 3:17-cv-00480-RS in the 5 United States District Court for the Northern District of California (“the Action”). (Dkt. No. 1.) The 6 action asserts claims on behalf of present and former non-exempt employees employed at 7 Defendant’s Crockett, California location covered by the CBA for: (1) Violation of the Fair Labor 8 Standards Act (“FLSA”) by under calculating the regular rate; (2) Failure to timely pay all wages 9 when due in violation of California Labor Code § 204; (3) Unlawful withholding of wages in 10 violation of California Labor Code §§ 221, 222 and 223, (4) Failure to timely pay final wages in 11 violation of California Labor Code §§ 201 and 202; (5) Failure to maintain required records in 12 violation of California Labor Code § 1174 and IWC Wage Order 1-2001 § 7; (6) Damages and 13 penalties for failure to furnish wage statements in compliance with California Labor Code § 226;
 14 (7) Penalties pursuant to California Private Attorney General Act pursuant to California Labor 15 Code § 2698 et. seq.; (8) Violation of California Business and Professions Code §§ 17200 et. seq., 16 and (9) Injunctive and Declaratory Relief (hereafter collectively “Claims”). The Complaint
 17 proposed two separate classes: (1) an FLSA Collective Action class for the FLSA claims (“FLSA
 18 Collective Action”), and (2) a Rule 23 Class Action class for the derivative state-law claims (“Rule 19 23 California Class”). (Tate Dec., ¶10; Dkt. No. 1 ¶26.)

20 Pursuant to the Court’s direction to the parties at the initial case management conference, 21 the parties met and conferred with the purpose of streamlining the action through the preliminary 22 class certification hearing. (Dkt. No. 30.) The parties agreed to engage in informal discovery and 23 mediate before a third party in lieu of the conditional certification and preliminary class certification
 24 to avoid the administration of multiple notices to the potential settlement classes. (Id.) The parties 25 also agreed to enter into a tolling agreement to cover the claims of individuals who not yet opted in 26 during the pendency of this process. (Tate Dec., ¶12.) This tolling agreement was executed in 27 October 2017. (Ibid.) During informal discovery, Defendants provided, and Class Counsel 28 reviewed, comprehensive payroll and time-punch records related to the claims of Opt-In Plaintiffs.

1 Defendants maintain were not the joint employers of Opt-In Plaintiffs before and during 2 the pendency of this Action. Class Counsel has conducted a thorough investigation into the facts 3 of this action, including a review of relevant documents, and has diligently pursued an 4 investigation of the claims of Opt-In Plaintiffs, Putative Plaintiffs and the Rule 23 California Class
 5 against Defendants. (Declaration of David E. Mastagni in Support of Plaintiff's Unopposed Motion 6 for (1) Conditional Certification (2) Preliminary Approval Certifying Class; (3) Certification of 7 Collective and Class Counsel; (5) Preliminary Approval of Settlement and Notice Thereof; (6)
 8 Setting Schedule for Final Approval of Settlement ("Mastagni Dec."), ¶ 11.)²

9 On January 31, 2018, the parties participated in a mediation before Timothy J. Long.
 10 (Mastagni Dec., ¶10.) Together with continuing discussions and negotiations thereafter, this 11 Settlement was reached after arms-length negotiations by and among the parties. On September 6, 12 2018, the Court conditionally certified the case as a collective and class action, preliminarily 13 approved the settlement agreement, and authorized the parties to send notice and claim forms to 14 the putative class member. (Docket No. 49.)

15 III

16 SUMMARY OF SETTLEMENT TERMS

17 The parties' proposed settlement (attached hereto as Ex. A) resolves the claims of the Opt-18 In Plaintiffs and Putative Plaintiffs in this action for a gross settlement amount of $515,000 19 ("GSA"). The GSA separately compensates Opt-In Plaintiffs and Putative Plaintiffs for their 20 damages, notice and administration and expenses thereof, attorney fees and costs and an incentive 21 award to the named Plaintiff and proposed FLSA Collective Action and Rule 23 California Class 22 Representative Ray Strong. Pending this Court's approval, the GSA would be allocated as follows:

23 (1) $260,000 shall be paid to the Opt-In Plaintiffs to resolve their FLSA collective action
 24 claims as well as their derivative state law claims ("Opt-In Plaintiff Settlement Amount") 25 during the period from March 28, 2012 – June 28, 2018 ("Opt-In Plaintiff Claim Period").
 26 $250,000 of the Opt-In Plaintiff settlement amount shall be apportioned to the FLSA claims 27 of Opt-In Plaintiffs and $10,000 to their derivative state law claims. The Opt-In Plaintiff

28 ² Docket No. 43-5, filed June 29, 2018.

1 Settlement Amount shall be non-reversionary. Each Opt-In Plaintiff shall receive a pro-2 rata portion of this allocation of the Opt-In Plaintiff settlement based on the total alleged 3 liability as calculated by Class Counsel using the number of hours worked beyond FLSA 4 threshold of forty (40) hours in a week and their receipt of Incentives during the Opt-In 5 Plaintiff Collective Action Claim Period. The remaining portion of the Opt-In Plaintiff 6 settlement apportioned to their derivative state law claims arising under FRCP 23 shall be 7 apportioned based on the number of workweeks an Opt-In Plaintiff worked beyond the 8 FLSA overtime threshold during the Opt-In Plaintiff Class Action Claim Period.

9 (2) A maximum of $85,000 shall be paid to the Putative Plaintiffs to resolve their FLSA 10 collective action claims as well as their derivative state law claims (“Putative Plaintiff
 11 Settlement Amount”) during the period from January 30, 2013 – June 28, 2018 (“Putative 12 Plaintiff Claim Period”). $75,000 of the Putative Plaintiff settlement amount shall be 13 apportioned to their FLSA claims and $10,000 to their derivative state law claims. Each 14 Putative Plaintiff shall receive a pro-rata portion of this allocation of the Putative Plaintiff 15 settlement based on the overtime hours they worked and their receipt of Incentives during 16 the Putative Plaintiff Collective Action Claim Period as follows: the total number of 17 overtime hours worked by all Putative Plaintiffs will be determined first. This number is 18 then divided by 75,000 to determine the pro rata recovery percentage that each overtime 19 hour represents out of the 75,000 total. The actual number of overtime hours worked by 20 each Putative Plaintiff who submits a claim form will then determine their pro rata recovery 21 of the whole. The remaining money is distributed back to the Putative Plaintiffs who 22 submitted claim forms.

23 (3) $20,000 of the GSA shall be paid to the California Labor Workforce and Development 24 Agency as penalties for Opt-In Plaintiffs’ and Putative claims under PAGA.

25 (4) $125,000 shall be paid to Class Counsel, Mastagni Holstedt, APC for attorney fees and 26 costs subject to court approval.

27 (5) $10,000 shall be paid to FLSA Collective Action and Rule 23 California Class 28 Representative Ray Strong as an incentive award subject to court approval.

1 (6) $15,000 shall be paid to Rust Consulting (“Settlement Administrator”) as estimated costs
2 for claims administration. Defendant will pay any additional costs of the settlement 3 administrator. Any additional administration costs shall be borne by Defendants and not 4 come from the GSA.

5 In response to the Court's suggestion, the parties' revised their original settlement
6 agreement with respect to the handling of unclaimed moneys allocated to the Opt-in and Putative
7 Class Members. Under the final Settlement Agreement, any unclaimed money will be distributed 8 on a pro rata basis to the people who submitted claim forms.

9 As part of the proposed settlement, Opt-In Plaintiffs and Putative Plaintiffs, in exchange 10 for their share of the respective settlement amounts shall release and discharge Defendant from all 11 Claims based on their respective claim period. This release shall be to fullest extent permitted by 12 law.

13 Defendants deny any liability or wrongdoing of any kind associated with the claims 14 alleged in this case. Defendants also contend, among other things, they complied with the FLSA, 15 California state wage and hour laws, and the UCL. Further, they contend they are not the joint 16 employers of the Opt-In Plaintiffs and Putative Plaintiffs for the purposes of the FLSA and the 17 California Labor Code and IWC Wage Order 1. Plaintiff Strong believes he has filed a meritorious 18 class action on behalf of himself and the individuals he seeks to represent based on alleged 19 violations of the FLSA, California wage and hour laws, and the UCL against Defendants. The 20 proposed settlement resolves these disputed issues to the satisfaction of the parties for the 21 applicable claim periods set forth herein.

STATUS OF SETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION

24 Pursuant to this Court’s Order, the Claims Administrator mailed Claim and Notice Forms 25 to every settlement class member via first class mail on January 15, 2019. (Declaration of Abigail 26 Schwartz for Rust Consulting, Inc. (the “Administrator Decl.”), ¶ 15.)³ These packets included a 27 postage paid envelope, and advised Class members they could submit a claim form, exclusion

³ Filed concurrently herewith.

1 form, objection, and/or dispute by February 14, 2019. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 15.)⁴

2 The Administrator sent out packets to 438 putative class members. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 3 15.) Zero objections were returned to the administrator. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 20.) 177 claim 4 forms were submitted. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 18.) 28 exclusion forms were submitted. (Id. at 19.)

5 Per the Settlement Agreement, the administrator will receive $15,000 of the administration 6 expense from the Settlement fund, while the remainder is to be paid by the Defendants. (Id. at ¶ 7 22.)

9 DISCUSSION

10 As discussed herein, the Court should certify this case as a collective and class action, and 11 grant final approval to the parties' settlement. The settlement grants substantial relief to the class 12 members. It was the result of arm's-length negotiations, and resolves several bona fide disputes 13 between the parties. No objections were filed to the proposed settlement. The Court should approve 14 it.

15 I. THE COURT SHOULD CERTIFY THE COLLECTIVE ACTION CLASS AS APPROPRIATE FOR THE PURPOSES OF THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT

16 Plaintiff brought this action as a collective action pursuant to 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) on behalf 17 of himself and all other similarly situated individuals. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶11-14.) Plaintiff alleged 18 Defendants caused him to work beyond the statutory overtime threshold and unlawfully excluded 19 multiple items of remuneration from the regular rate including shift differentials, overtime 20 facilitator payments, meal allowances, attendance incentives, and annual Christmas Awards that 21 were provided by the CBA. (Id., ¶¶36, 39, 40, 42-44.) These allegations present common questions 22 of law and fact as to the other collective action members. (Id., ¶19.) The parties agree for the 23 purposes of the proposed settlement that the Plaintiff and all individuals employed by Defendants 24 in non-exempt positions covered by the CBA that worked beyond forty hours in a week and 25

26 ⁴ Initially, this Court set October 12, 2018 as the deadline for sending notice to the putative class members. (Docket 27 No. 52.) However, after notice was mailed, the parties discovered that the Defendants included non-class members in 28 the list of putative plaintiffs to receive notice. As a result, the parties moved for, and the Court ordered, curative notice to be sent to the individuals incorrectly sent notice. (Docket No. 54.) In addition to authorizing the claims administrator to send curative notices to the incorrectly identified individuals, the Court moved the deadline for sending out new notices to the class members to January 15, 2019.

1 received any Incentives at any time with the three year period prior to the date of the complaint or 2 the effective date of any applicable tolling agreement, are similarly situated to each other for the 3 purposes of 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) (“FLSA Collective Action”). Further, the parties agreed for the 4 purposes of the proposed settlement that the FLSA Collective Action class shall be divided into 5 two subclasses defined as follows:

- (1) FLSA Collective Action Opt-In Plaintiff subclass shall consist of all Collective Action members that have already opted into this action
- (2) FLSA Collective Action Putative Plaintiff subclass shall consist of all Collective Action members that have not opted into this action.

10 Plaintiff Strong should be named representative of the Collective Action. As discussed 11 below, in relation to his adequacy to serve as a class representative, Plaintiff Strong's claims are 12 typical of the individuals he seeks to represent, and there are no conflicts that would prevent him 13 from representing the collective action members in this case.

14 To ensure a complete resolution of the FLSA Collective Action members' claims, the 15 Plaintiff seeks an order certifying this action as an FLSA collective action pursuant to 29 U.S.C.
16 §§201, et seq.

II. THE COURT SHOULD CERTIFY PLAINTIFFS' DERIVATIVE STATE LAW CLAIMS AS CLASS CLAIMS UNDER RULE 23

18 In addition to certifying this case as an FLSA collective action, Plaintiff asks the Court to 19 make appropriate findings and certify the Rule 23 California Class proposed in Plaintiff's 20 Complaint as definite and ascertainable. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶26.) A district court has broad discretion 21 whether to certify a class. (Lienhart v. Dryvit Systems, Inc. 255 F.3d 138, 146 (4th Cir. 2001).)
22 Because of the res judicata effect a class judgment has on absent parties, a court may not simply 23 accept the named parties' stipulation that class certification is appropriate, but must conduct its 24 own independent Rule 23 analysis. (Zuniga v. Bernalillo County 319 F.R.D. 640, 660 (D. New 25 Mexico 2016)(relying on Amchem Prods., Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. at 620–22 (1997).)

26 Plaintiff seeks to certify a Rule 23 California Class composed of all individuals covered by 27 the CBA that worked beyond forty hours in a week and received Incentives at any time during the 28 Rule 23 California Class Period as defined in Plaintiff's Complaint. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶26.) The Rule

1 23 California Class comprises two sub-classes based on the differing statute of limitations related 2 to the tolling agreement executed prior to the filing of this Action. (Id.) The subclasses shall be 3 defined as follows:

4 (1) The California Opt-In Plaintiff Sub-Class shall be defined as all individuals who have 5 opted into this action by filing a consent to join. The applicable claim period for the 6 California Opt-In Sub-Class Claim Period shall be from March 28, 2012 – June 29, 7 2018.

8 (2) The California Putative Plaintiff Sub-Class shall be defined as all individuals who are 9 members of the Collective Action Class that have not yet opted into the action. The 10 applicable claim period for the California Opt-In Sub-Class Claim Period shall be from 11 January 30, 2013 – June 29, 2018.

12 A. The California Sub-Classes Each Meet The Requirements Of Rule 23(a).

13 The state law class and sub-classes, as proposed, independently meet all four prerequisites 14 of Rule 23(a) necessary for class certification: numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy 15 of representation. (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a).)

16 1. The California Class And Sub-Classes Are Sufficiently Numerous

17 Rule 23(a)(1) requires the proposed class be so numerous that joinder of all class members 18 is impracticable. Plaintiff does not need to show that the number is so large that it would be 19 impossible to join every class member. (Harris v. Palm Springs Alpine Estates, Inc., 329 F.2d 20 909, 913-914 (9th Cir. 1964); See also Sandoval v. M1 Auto Collision Centers 309 F.R.D. 549, 21 562 (N.D. Cal. 2015)(certifying class of 63 individuals); Robidoux v. Celani 987 F.3d 931, 936, 22 (2d. Cir. 1993)(“Consolidating in a class action what could be over 100 individual suits serves 23 judicial economy.”) Each of the sub-classes are clearly large enough to make joinder
 24 impracticable. The California Opt-In Plaintiff Sub-Class as defined exceeds over 100 individuals.
 25 Further, the California Putative Plaintiff Sub-Class exceeded 160 individuals. (Tate Decl., ¶12.)
 26 Indeed, the parties ultimately identified over 400 class members. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 15.)
 27 Courts presume the numerosity requirement is met when a class exceeds 40 members.
 28 (Consolidated Rail Corp. v. Town of Hyde Park, 47 F.3d 473, 483 (2d Cir.1995).) Given that each

1 of the subclasses have over a hundred members each, there is no doubt each proposed subclass
 2 satisfies Rule 23(a)(1)'s numerosity requirement.

3 2. The Claims Of The Rule 23 California Class And Sub-Classes Turn On 4 Common Questions Of Law And Fact

5 Under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2), the Plaintiff must show there is a question of law or fact 6 common to the class. The commonality test is met when there is at least one issue, the resolution 7 of which will affect all or a significant number of the putative class members. (*Lightbourn v.
 8 County of El Paso, Tex.*, 118 F.3d 421, 426 (5th Cir. 1997).) "A common nucleus of operative fact 9 is usually enough to satisfy the commonality requirement of Rule 23(a)(2)." (*Rosario v.
 10 Livaditis*, 963 F.2d 1013, 1018 (7th Cir. 1992); Sorenson v. Concannon, 893 F.Supp. 1469, 1479 11 (D. Or. 1994)(where system-wide procedures are at issue, commonality exists).)

12 Here, the requirement of a common question of law or fact is met. The proposed Rule 23 13 California Class and subclasses members' claims all stem from the same source: the allegation that 14 the Defendants unlawfully excluded multiple items of remuneration provided by the CBA from 15 the regular rate that resulted in the underpayment of legally owed overtime compensation.
 16 Defendants calculated Plaintiff Strong's regular rate in the same manner the rest of the members 17 of the California Class. Questions of law and fact common to the California Class and both subclasses include:

- 18 • Whether Defendants failed to timely pay wages in violation of California Labor Code § 19 204;
- 20 • Whether Defendants unlawfully withheld wages in violation of California Labor Code §§ 21 221, 222 and 223;
- 22 • Whether Defendants failed to timely pay final wages to class members who separated 23 from employment from Defendants in violation of California Labor Code §§ 201 and 202 24 during the relevant time period;
- 25 • Whether Defendants failed to maintain required records in violation of California Labor 26 Code § 1174 and IWC Wage Order 1-2001 § 7;
- 27 • Whether Defendants failed to furnish accurate wage statements that did not comply with 28

the requirements of California Labor §226(a);

- Whether Defendants furnished non-compliant wage statements that constituted an “injury” for the purposes of California Labor Code § 226(e) entitling them to damages and/or penalties;
- Whether, based on the foregoing, California Class members are entitled to penalties pursuant to PAGA (Cal. Lab. Code § 2698 et. seq.); and
- Whether, based on the based on the foregoing, Defendants violated California’s Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”)(Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, et. seq.)

9 Plaintiff only has to establish one common question of law or fact to meet the low threshold 10 set by Rule 23(a)(2). As set forth above, Plaintiff's showing far surpasses that requirement.

3. Typicality

12 The named Plaintiff's claims are also typical of those of the California Class and subclasses 13 he seeks to represent. (Fed. Rule Civ. Proc. 23(a)(3).) The test for typicality, like the test for 14 commonality, is not demanding. (Lightbourn, supra 118 F.3d at 426.) Typicality exists if the 15 named plaintiffs' claims are "reasonably coextensive" with those of absent class members. (Staton 16 v. Boeing, 327 F.3d 938, 957 (9th Cir.2003).) To be considered typical for purposes of class 17 certification, the named plaintiff need not have suffered an identical wrong. Rather, the class 18 representative must be part of the class and possess the same interest and suffer the same injury as 19 the class members. (Campbell v. Facebook, Inc. 315 F.R.D. 250, 262 (N.D. Cal. 2016)(relying on 20 General Telephone Company of the Southwest v. Falcon 457 U.S. 147, 156 (1982).)

21 Plaintiff Strong's state law claims under the Labor Code and the UCL are typical of those 22 of the California Sub-Classes because they all arise out of the same systemic reoccurring event - 23 Defendants' alleged failure to include certain payments for the purposes of calculating overtime.

24 “Calculation of the correct ‘regular rate’ is the linchpin of the FLSA overtime 25 requirement.” (O’Brien v. Town of Agawam 350 F.3d 279, 294 (1st Cir. 2003).) Like the rest of 26 the members of each of the Rule 23 California Class and subclasses, Plaintiff Strong and the 27 putative class members he purports to represent regularly worked beyond 40 hours in each work 28 week entitling him to overtime compensation pursuant to the FLSA. Plaintiff Strong and the

1 putative class members he purports to represent regularly earned payments pursuant to the CBA 2 that allegedly were not included in each individual's respective regular rate for purposes of 3 calculating overtime. Defendant calculated the regular rate in the same manner with respect to 4 Plaintiff Strong as they did the other members of the California Class and subclasses. As such, 5 Plaintiff Strong's claims are typical of his fellow California Class members.

6 4. Adequacy

7 The proposed Rule 23 California Class Representative Plaintiff Strong has and will continue 8 to "fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class." (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(4).) To satisfy 9 constitutional due process concerns, unnamed class members must be afforded adequate 10 representation before entry of a judgment which binds them. Legal adequacy is determined by 11 resolution of two questions: (1) whether named plaintiffs and their counsel have any conflicts with 12 class members; and (2) whether named plaintiffs and their counsel will prosecute the action 13 vigorously on behalf of the class. Generally, representation will be found to be adequate when the 14 attorneys representing the class are qualified and competent, and the class representatives are not 15 disqualified by interests antagonistic to the remainder of the class. (Campbell, supra at 315 F.R.D.
 16 at 263.) Both elements are satisfied here.

17 First, Plaintiff has retained counsel who are qualified and experienced to litigate this action.
 18 The law firm of Mastagni Holstedt, APC has represented plaintiffs in numerous wage and hour 19 and other employment class actions. (Mastagni Dec., ¶¶2-4.) Second, Plaintiff Strong has no 20 interests antagonistic to the interests of the proposed Rule 23 California Class and sub-classes and 21 FLSA Collective Action Class and sub-classes. Strong is not only a plaintiff in this Action, he is 22 also a leader of SWU Local 1. (Declaration of Ray Strong in Support of Joint Motion for 23 Preliminary Approval of Settlement ("Strong Dec."), ¶3.)⁵ He has a bargaining interest in 24 advocating for and protecting the interests of his association's members who are also members of 25 the FLSA Collective Action Class and the Rule 23 California Class. As noted above, under the 26 proposed settlement, Strong will receive an incentive award for his efforts on behalf of the FLSA 27 Collective Action and the Rule 23 California Class. Other than this specific payment, which is less 28 ⁵ Docket No. 43-6, filed June 29, 2018.

1 than 2% of the GSA, all of the Rule 23 California Class members will be entitled to receive a 2 portion of either the Opt-In Plaintiff Settlement Amount or Putative Plaintiff Settlement Amount 3 apportioned to these claims based on the number of workweeks they worked above forty (40) hours
 4 during their respective claim period. This allocation methodology acknowledges the individual 5 circumstances of each participant with respect to their dates of employment and hours worked.

6 Because the settlement interests of both classes are aligned, and each member of the 7 subclasses will share in the proceeds based on their underlying overtime claims based on work
 8 weeks, there are no allocation issues that would result in conflict. (Hanlon v. Chrysler Corp. 150 9 F.3d 1011, 1020 (9th Cir. 1998).) Finally, any California Class member who wished to “opt out” 10 of the proposed settlement was allowed to do so, and was provided ample notice of that right.
 11 Indeed, several people exercised this right. (See Administrator Decl., ¶ 19.) Therefore no conflict 12 of interest exists between the named class representative and the California Class members.
 13 Accordingly, Plaintiff Strong is an adequate representative of the California Class because he 14 shares in the same manner, pursuant to the same formula and in an equitable distribution as the 15 class members he seeks to represent through the proposed settlement.

16 B. The Proposed California Class and Subclasses Satisfy Rule 23(b)(3).

17 In addition, the Rule 23 California Class and sub-classes satisfy the requirements of Rule 18 23(b)(3): predominance of common issues and superiority of the class action device. Common 19 issues of law or fact “predominate over any questions affecting only individual members.” 20 (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3).) Defendants’ calculation of the regular rate is equally applicable to 21 each proposed Class member’s claims and damages. The proposed Rule 23 California Class 22 and sub-classes in this case are sufficiently cohesive to warrant adjudication by 23 representation. (Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1022.) The representative Plaintiff and all of the 24 proposed Rule 23 California Class members seek overtime pay and related damages and 25 penalties based on the alleged underpayment of overtime. Common questions about whether 26 Defendants underpaid overtime based on an incorrect regular rate predominate over 27 individual questions (of which there is none), and the Rule 23 California Class members’ 28 potential legal remedies are identical within each sub-class. Any variation in individual class

1 members' damages is plainly insufficient to defeat class certification. (Levy v. Medline
 2 Industries, Inc., 716 F.3d 510, 513–14 (9th Cir. 2013).) Thus, the proposed Rule 23 3 California Class and sub-classes may be certified for settlement purposes.

4 The class action device proposed here “is superior to other available methods for the fair 5 and efficient adjudication of the controversy.” (Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3).) “[T]he purpose of the 6 superiority requirement is to assure that the class action is the most efficient and effective means 7 of resolving the controversy.” (Wolin v. Jaguar Land Rover North America, LLC 617 F.3d 1168, 8 1175–76 (9th Cir. 2010).) This action allows all of the Rule 23 California Class members’ claims 9 to be fairly, adequately, and efficiently resolved to a degree that no other mechanism or forum 10 would provide. As in Hanlon, the alternative methods of resolution are individual claims for a 11 relatively small amount of damages. (Hanlon, supra, 150 F.3d at 1023.) These claims “would 12 prove uneconomic for potential plaintiffs” because “litigation costs would dwarf potential 13 recovery.” (Id.) For this reason, a class action is the superior method of resolution. There are no 14 issues of manageability under the proposed settlement that would preclude class certification. As 15 discussed infra, the proposed plan of distribution and settlement process is efficient and 16 manageable.

17 III. PLAINTIFFS’ COUNSEL SHOULD BE APPOINTED FLSA COLLECTIVE ACTION AND RULE 23 CALIFORNIA CLASS COUNSEL

18 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g) requires the Court to consider the following four factors when 19 appointing class counsel: whether (1) counsel has investigated the class claims, (2) counsel is 20 experienced in handling class actions and complex litigation, (3) counsel is knowledgeable 21 regarding the applicable law, and (4) counsel will commit adequate resources to representing the 22 class. (Victorino v. FCA US LLC 322 F.R.D. 403, 406 (S.D. Cal. 2017).) Plaintiff’s counsel is well 23 qualified and easily meets the standards of Rule 23(g), as set forth in the declarations of David E.
 24 Mastagni,⁶ Isaac S. Stevens,⁷ and Ace T. Tate.⁸ Prior to and during this litigation, Class Counsel

25
 26 ⁶ Mastagni Dec.

 Collective and Class Counsel; (5) Preliminary Approval of Settlement and Notice Thereof; (6) Setting Schedule for Final Approval of Settlement (“Stevens Dec.”), Docket No. 43-4, filed June 29, 2018.

⁸ Tate Dec.

1 conducted an extensive investigation of the class claims. (Mastagni Dec., ¶¶12-13.) In addition,
 2 Class Counsel is very experienced and knowledgeable regarding complex federal and state wage
 3 and hour class actions. (Mastagni Dec., ¶¶2-4.) Finally, Class Counsel has committed significant 4 resources to representing the California Class, including over six thousand dollars in out-of-pocket 5 expenses. (Mastagni Dec., ¶29.) Accordingly, appointment of Plaintiff's counsel as Collective 6 Action and Class Counsel is appropriate.

7 IV. THE PROPOSED SETTLEMENT MERITS APPROVAL OF THE FLSA
COLLECTIVE ACTION AND RULE 23 CALIFORNIA CLASS ACTION CLAIMS

8 The proposed settlement warrants approval under the FLSA and Rule 23 because it resolves 9 bona fide disputes between the Parties. "If a settlement in an employee FLSA suit does reflect a 10 reasonable compromise over issues, such as FLSA coverage or computation of back wages, that 11 are actually in dispute[,] . . . the district court [may] approve the settlement in order to promote the 12 policy of encouraging settlement of litigation." (Nen Thio v. Genji, LLC, 14 F.Supp.3d 1324, 1333 13 (N.D. Cal. 2014); Lynn's Food Stores, 679 F.2d at 1353 n.8 (requiring "settlement of a bona fide 14 dispute between the Parties with respect to coverage or amount due under the [FLSA]").) The 15 purpose of this analysis is to ensure that an employee does not waive claims for wages, overtime 16 compensation, or liquidated damages when no actual dispute exists between the Parties. (Ibid.)

17 A. The Proposed Settlement Resolves Multiple Bona Fide Disputes Between The Parties Arising Under The FLSA For The Relevant Claim Periods

18 The Court should approve the proposed Settlement Agreement because it resolves several 19 bona fide disputes relating to the proper calculation of overtime and extent of Defendants' alleged 20 liability under the FLSA.

21 1. A Bona Fide Dispute About How to Calculate the Regular Rate

22 There are bona fide disputes over how the putative class members' regular rate should be 23 calculated. For example, as to the Christmas Award the Parties dispute whether the payment is 24 made for a holiday that would be excludable from the regular rate pursuant to 207(e)(2) or whether 25 it functions as a retention bonus that must be included pursuant to 29 C.F.R. 778.211(c). (Tate 26 Dec., ¶14.) The Christmas Award is an annual payment made on the first pay period in December.
 27 It is not tied to the number of hours actually worked by Collective Action members. Case law is 28 scant and far from definitive on whether payments labeled as holiday pay are excludable from the

1 regular rate. Most have focused on the timing of the payments. (Hart v. City of Alameda
 2 (unpublished), Case No. C-0705845MMC, 2009 WL 1705612 (N.D. Cal. June 17, 2009)
 3 employing a “due to” test and concluding biweekly holiday in lieu payments made pursuant to a 4 collective bargaining agreement were not excludable from the regular rate; See also Lewis v.
 5 County of Colusa, Case No. 2:16-cv-01745-VC, 2018 WL 1605754 *2 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 3, 6 2018)(concluding that timing of payments to the occurrence of holidays was a “closer” question 7 but ultimately determined they must be included in the regular rate). This circuit has not 8 definitively ruled on this type of payment. As such, it is in dispute whether it is includable in the 9 regular rate.

10 Likewise, there is a dispute over whether meal allowance payments should be included in 11 the regular rate. Plaintiffs contend that, since these payments are paid as taxable wages related to 12 specific hours of work (e.g. having to work two or more hours than originally scheduled), they are 13 considered to be compensation for work pursuant to 29 C.F.R. 778.224. (Tate Dec., ¶15.) 14 Compensation for services cannot be excluded under 29 U.S.C. § 207(e)(2). (Flores v. City of San 15 Gabriel 824 F.3d 890, 898-900 (9th Cir. 2016).) Defendants argue these payments are akin to 16 “supper money” which the DOL has determined is excludable from the regular rate as 17 reimbursement because it is an expense incurred at the convenience of the employer. (29 CFR 18 778.217(b)(4) defining “supper money” as a reasonable amount given to an employee, who 19 ordinarily works the day shift and can ordinarily return home for supper, to cover the cost of supper 20 when he is requested by his employer to continue work during the evening hours. (Ibid.) Appellate 21 courts are likewise split on this issue. (See Newman v. Advanced Technology Innovation Corp. 749 22 F.3d 33 (1st Cir. 2014)(concluding that per diem payments could not be excluded from the regular 23 rate because they were tied to the number of hours worked in a week); Compare Sharp v. CGG 24 Land (U.S.) Inc. 840 F.3d 1211 (10th Cir. 2016)(concluding that payments were excludable 25 because they were not tied to the number of hours worked). As such, a bona fide dispute exists as 26 to whether the meal allowances at issue are required to be included in the regular rate.

27 Another unresolved issue is whether attendance incentive payments should be included in 28 the regular rate. (Tate Dec., ¶16.) The CBA provides a pool of money to employees based on non-use of sick leave. Defendant relies on the Sixth Circuit’s decision in Featsent v. City of Youngtown

1 70 F.3d. 900, 905 (6th Cir. 1995) where it held a bonus provided by a collective bargaining 2 agreement for the non-use of sick leave is excludable because the payments were unrelated to the 3 employees' compensation for services and hours of service. However, there is authority supporting 4 Plaintiff's position that such payments must be included in the regular rate because they induce 5 employees to work more steadily. (DOL Opinion Letter FLSA 2009-19 p. 4; Acton v. City of 6 Columbia 436 F.3d 969 (8th Cir. 2006); Chavez v. City of Albuquerque 630 F.3d 1300 (10th Cir.
 7 2011).) The Ninth Circuit has not yet ruled on the issue of attendance incentives but has ruled that 8 leave buybacks not tied to attendance were not includable in the regular rate. (Balestrieri v. Menlo 9 Park Fire District 800 F.3d 1094 (9th Cir. 2015).) The court in Balestrieri acknowledged the 10 circuit divergence among Featsent and Acton and Chavez by describing the contrasting positions 11 of these courts as "debatable" and concluding that "[t]here was no reason to assume that employers 12 providing sick leave prefer that their employees not use it". (Id. at 1103.) Thus, a bona fide dispute 13 exists as to whether Defendants were required to include the sick leave incentive in the regular 14 rate.

15 While the law may be more definitive as to the overtime coordinator payments very few 16 individuals received these payments. Further, the size of these payments are small. (Tate Dec., 17 ¶17.) Thus, their effect on the total alleged liability is minuscule. While Plaintiffs strongly believe 18 these payments are includable, no binding circuit authority has directly addressed these types of 19 payments.

2. The Parties Dispute The Application Of Offsets And Credits

20 Perhaps the most significant dispute in this matter is whether Defendants are entitled to 21 seek offsets and credits pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 207(h)(2). This subsection allows an 22 employer to offset and/or seek a credit towards its FLSA obligation for payments made in excess 23 of what the statute requires. "The regulations specifically explain how to treat such mid-workweek 24 contractual overtime payments under the Act: only the premium portion of the contractual 25 overtime rate (that is, the amount in excess of the employee's regular rate) is deemed 'overtime' 26 pay and may be offset against any statutory overtime liability in the same week." (See 29 C.F.R.
 27 §§ 778.201(a), 202(a), O'Brien v. Town of Agawam 350 F.3d 279, 289 (1st Cir. 2003).)

28

1 Under the CBA, Collective Action and California Class members are entitled to overtime 2 at one and one-half times their hourly rate for all hours worked beyond eight hours in a day and 3 double their hourly rate for all hours worked beyond twelve. The FLSA does not provide daily 4 overtime or double time⁹. As such, Defendants are entitled to assert a credit for all overtime 5 premiums (0.5) and double-time premiums (1.0) that were paid on all hours that were also not 6 overtime hours as defined by the FLSA (e.g. above forty) for the alleged miscalculation of the 7 regular rate on statutory overtime hours. Defendant retained an expert on the issue of damages, 8 Bruce L. Ross & Company. Defendant's expert prepared a report for the mediation concluding 9 that proper application of the credits resulted in a net liability of only $154.76. (Tate Dec., ¶18.)
 10 In stark contrast, Class Counsel acknowledged that the Defendants were entitled to credits pursuant 11 to 29 U.S.C. § 207(h)(2) but contended that there remained significant liability, approximately 12 $364,500.00 in overtime back pay and liquidated damages owed to the Opt-In Plaintiffs. Thus, the 13 issue of credits pursuant to 29 U.S.C. § 207(h)(2) is a hotly disputed issue.

14 3. The Parties Dispute Whether Defendants Acted In Good-Faith

15 The parties also dispute whether the class members are entitled to liquidated damages. 29 16 U.S.C. section 216(b) provides that "an employer who violates the Act shall be liable for unpaid 17 overtime compensation plus an additional equal amount as liquidated damages." (Local 246 Util.
18 Workers Union of Am. v. S. California Edison Co., 83 F.3d 292, 297 (9th Cir. 1996).) Courts have 19 the discretion to deny an award of liquidated damages if the employer shows that it acted in 20 subjective "good faith" and had objectively "reasonable grounds" for believing that its conduct did 21 not violate the FLSA. (Chao v. A-One Medical Services, Inc. 346 F.3d 908, 920 (9th Cir. 2003).)
 22 Defendants argue that, because the CBA provides more generous overtime thresholds than what 23 the FLSA requires, its liability is completely exhausted by credits it could assert pursuant to 29
 24 U.S.C. § 207(h)(2) in most circumstances. (Roy v. County of Lexington, South Carolina 141 F.3d 25 533, 548, 549 (4th Cir. 1998)(affirming denial of liquidated damages based on advice of counsel 26 that proved ultimately incorrect as well as the fact that the contract at issue compensated employees 27 in a manner more generous than what the FLSA required in most instances).) If no additional back

28 ⁹ Collective Action and California Class members are not entitled to daily overtime or double-time under state law because they are covered by a collective bargaining agreement. See Cal. Lab. Code §514; IWC Wage Order 1 Section 3(H).

1 wages were owed, there could not be any award of liquidated damages. If back pay was 2 determined to be owed, this issue affects the total FLSA liability by 50%. (Tate Dec., ¶19.)
 3 Therefore, this is also a disputed issue.

4 4. The Parties Dispute The Applicable Limitations Period

5 Finally, there is a dispute as to the applicable statute of limitations. (Tate Dec., ¶20.) 6 Generally, the FLSA has a two-year statute of limitations. (29 U.S.C. § 255(a).) However, if the 7 violation of the FLSA is willful, the statute of limitations extends to three years. (Id.) The burden 8 is on the employee(s) to show a willful violation. “Unlike good faith, the employee bears the 9 burden of proving the willfulness of the employer’s FLSA violations.” (Bankston v. Illinois, 60 10 F.3d 1249, 1253 (7th Cir.1995).)

11 Plaintiff has asserted that Defendants’ actions were willful. However, Defendants claim 12 they acted in good faith because they made continued efforts to assess compliance with the FLSA 13 despite the unclear state of the law with respect to most of the items of remuneration. (Bothell v.
 14 Phase Metrics, Inc. 299 F.3d 1120, 1130 (9th Cir. 2002) (concluding that a finding of good faith 15 precludes a finding of willfulness).) Moreover, even if the statute of limitations was three years, if 16 Defendants proved to be correct regarding the application of credits, liability would be next to 17 nothing regardless of whether the court applied a two-year or a three-year statute of limitations.

18 All of these disputed issues affect the strength of FLSA Collective Action members’ claims 19 that would ultimately affect their monetary recovery if this matter proceeded to trial.

20 B. The Proposed Settlement Resolves Multiple Bona Fide Disputes Between The 21 Parties Arising Under Rule 23 Claims For The Relevant Claim Periods

22 The Court should approve the proposed Settlement Agreement because it resolves several 23 bona fide disputes relating to the proper calculation of overtime and extent of Defendants’ alleged 24 liability under the derivative state law claims.

25 1. The Parties Dispute the Scope and Extent to Which Defendants Would be 26 Subject to Penal Liability Under the Private Attorney General Act

27 Plaintiff also brought claims under the California Labor Code pursuant to the California 28 Private Attorney General Act (Cal. Lab. Code §2698 et. seq. “PAGA”). Plaintiff asserted as a result of Defendants alleged under calculation of the regular rate, he along with the rest of the California
 Class members were not paid all wages earned outside the normal work period in a timely manner

1 as required by California Labor Code 204. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶72-79.) For this violation, PAGA sets forth
 2 a penalty structure of $100 per employee per pay period for each violation. (Cal. Lab. Code 210.)
 3 Any subsequent violation or any willful violation proscribes a $200 penalty per employee per pay 4 period, plus 25% of the unlawfully withheld sum. (Id.) However, as set forth above, Defendants 5 contend that if it were liable for the under calculation of the regular rate, after the application of 6 offsets and credits there would be no underlying PAGA penalty liability for most of the Plaintiffs.
 7 Further, Defendants contend that if any underlying liability were found based on their methodology 8 with respect to offsets and credits, the Court would significantly reduce such penalties in its 9 discretion based on these circumstances because to do otherwise would be unjust, arbitrary, 10 oppressive and confiscatory. (Cal. Lab. Code §2699(e)(2).) Likewise, the same dispute exists 11 between the Parties for the allegation that Defendants failed to pay wages pursuant to a statute
 12 and/or contract that were unlawfully withheld pursuant to California Labor Code sections 221-223 13 as alleged by Plaintiff. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶80-86.) Further, the same penalty structure applies. (Cal. Lab.
 14 Code §225.5.) As such, Plaintiffs recovery of penalties under this PAGA claim is uncertain.

15 The parties also dispute the PAGA liability with respect to the allegation that Defendants 16 issued non-compliant wage statements as a result of the underlying allegation of failing to properly 17 calculate the regular rate. PAGA applies a penalty of $100 per employee per pay period for each 18 non-compliant wage statement. (Cal. Lab. Code §2699(f)(2).) Any subsequent violation, the 19 penalty rises to $200 penalty per employee per pay period. (Id.) Plaintiff contends Defendants' 20 alleged systemic under calculation of the regular rate caused them to receive wage statements that 21 did not accurately reflect gross wages earned and net wages earned as required by California Labor 22 Code section 226(a) subsections (1) and (5). However, Defendants contend the wage statements 23 issued do comply with the statute because they did not under calculate the regular rate resulting in 24 an under reporting on the wage statements furnished to California Class members. Further, 25 Defendants also contend, any wages allegedly unpaid due to the under calculation of the regular 26 rate and after the application of the offsets and credits are easily decipherable from the other items 27 listed on the wage statements they provided as required by California Labor Code section 226(a).
 28 As such, Defendants contend that application of the penalties at face value for non-compliant wage

1 statements, if any, would be unjust, arbitrary, oppressive and confiscatory in light of the alleged 2 underlying liability as they have calculated it and would compel the Court to reduce them in its 3 discretion.

4 The parties also dispute whether Plaintiff can even bring a PAGA claim under California 5 Labor Code 226.3. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶105.) Plaintiff alleged that the failure to provide compliant wage 6 statements with respect to gross wages and net wages earned, while Defendants assert that Plaintiff 7 failed to allege that he was not provided a wage statement, at any time during the claim period.
 8 California federal courts have come to conflicting conclusions whether a plaintiff must plead an 9 employer's failure to furnish a wage statement or whether simply a non-compliant wage statement 10 is sufficient to bring a PAGA penalty claim under section 226.3 for violation of section 226(a).
 11 (See Culley v. Lincare, Inc. 236 F.Supp.3d 1184, 1194 (E.D. Cal. 2017), Compare Fleming v.
 12 Covidien, Inc., ED CV-10-01487 RGK, (C.D. Cal., Aug. 12, 2011), 2011 WL 7563047, p. *7.) 13 Further, Defendants also contend that if section 226.3 did apply to Plaintiff's claims, any 14 underpayment that resulted in non-compliant wage statements based on its minuscule wage liability 15 calculation was an inadvertent mistake justifying reduction of any penalties assessed in the 16 discretion of the Court.

17 Finally, Plaintiff and California Class members' alleged Defendants failed to maintain 18 accurate records is minuscule with respect to the allegation of failing to maintain and keep accurate 19 records required by the applicable wage order. (Dkt. No. 1, ¶93-100.) The maximum penalty is 20 $500 which the Court would also be empowered to reduce in its discretion under PAGA. (Cal. Lab.
 21 Code §1174.5.)

22 Taking all of these issues into account with respect to PAGA liability, if Plaintiff proceeded 23 to trial and if any underlying FLSA liability were to be found, there would be a significant risk any 24 PAGA penalties assessed would be severely reduced by the Court.

25 2. The Parties Also Dispute Whether Plaintiff and California Class Members
 26 Have Been Injured for the Purposes of California Labor Code Section 27 226(e)

28 Additionally, Plaintiff alleged on behalf of himself and California Class members a separate 29 claim under 226(e) for damages/penalties for Defendants failure to issue wage statements that

1 complied with the statute. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶104.) Specifically, Plaintiff contends the wage statements
 2 issued did not reflect all gross wages earned and net wages earned. Subsection (e) requires a 3 plaintiff to demonstrate a statutorily defined injury if an employer furnishes a wage statement that 4 does not comply with subsection (a). (Cal. Lab. Code 226(e)(B)(i) – (iv).) Defendants contend 5 Plaintiff and the putative class members have not been injured as defined by the statute because 6 any missing information can easily be determined from the wage statements themselves. (“For 7 purposes of this paragraph, “promptly and easily determine” means a reasonable person would be 8 able to readily ascertain the information without reference to other documents or information.” Cal.
 9 Lab. Code 226(e)(C).) However, Plaintiff contends Defendants’ failure to provide the accurate 10 amount of net wages earned caused them to refer to documents other than the wage statement 11 regarding their tax obligations such as a W-2. Class Counsel believes the issue of whether reference 12 to tax documents or other related information constitutes an injury for the purposes of a claim under 13 226(e) is a matter of first impression. Moreover, Defendants also contend that any inability to 14 decipher net wages earned from the wage statement alone was an inadvertent mistake in light of 15 the fact that the CBA typically provides greater compensation than what the FLSA requires and 16 they calculated such minuscule underlying wage liability. (Cal. Lab. Code §226(e)(C)(3).) As such, 17 the parties dispute whether there is any liability under 226(e), let alone the amount thereof.

18 3. The Parties Also Dispute Whether Plaintiff and California Class Members
 19 That Have Separated From Employment Would be Entitled to Waiting 20 Time Penalties

21 Plaintiff also brought a waiting time penalty claim on behalf of all California Class members 22 pursuant to California Labor Code section 203. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶87-92.) California Labor Code section 23 203 proscribes a penalty of an employee’s average daily wage up to thirty days when an employer
 24 willfully fails to timely pay final wages at separation in accordance with California Labor Code 25 sections 201 or 202. Willful means that the employer intentionally failed or refused to perform an 26 act which was required to be done. (Kao v. Holiday (2017) 12 Cal.App.5th 947, 963.) Plaintiff and 27 California Class members contend they are entitled to waiting time penalties based on the allegation 28 that Defendants systematically under calculated the regular rate resulting in underpayment of

1 legally owed wages that were not paid at the time of separation from employment with Defendants 2 during the relevant time period.

3 Defendants contend a good faith dispute exists whether any wages are actually owed with 4 respect to the unclear state of the law regarding the calculation of the regular rate as well as the 5 application of offsets and credits alleviating them from any waiting time penalty liability. (See 6 Amaral v. Cintas Corp. No. 2 (2008) 163 Cal.App.4th 1157, 1202 (Employer avoided waiting time 7 penalties for failing to tender all final wages because legal obligations imposed by living wage local 8 ordinance were unclear.) Further, Defendants contend that even if it were determined that back pay 9 would be owed, a good faith dispute can be found even if such defense is ultimately unsuccessful.
 10 (Diaz v. Grill Concepts Services, Inc. (2018) 23 Cal.App.5th 859.) If this matter proceeded to trial, 11 even if liability were established under the FLSA, there would be no guarantee that waiting time 12 penalties would be awarded to those class members who separated from employment.

13 4. The Parties Also Dispute Whether The UCL Applies to Plaintiff and 14 California Class Members' FLSA Claims And Whether They Would be 15 Entitled to Any Restitution

16 Finally, Plaintiff also brought a claim on behalf of himself and California Class members 17 pursuant to the UCL which has a four-year statute of limitations. (Dkt. No. 1 ¶120-123; Cal. Bus.
 18 & Prof. Code §17208.) Under the UCL, a trial court has broad equitable power to award restitution 19 after considering “the equities on both sides of a dispute.” (Cortez v. Purolator Air Filtration 20 Products Company (2000) 23 Cal.4th 163, 180). Plaintiff contends he is entitled to restitution in 21 the form of back pay for the under calculation of the regular rate based on the UCL’s statute of 22 limitations not covered by their respective FLSA claim accounting for the Parties tolling 23 agreements or filing date of this action, whichever is earlier. Defendants contend as set forth above, 24 based on the disputes with respect to the calculation of the regular rate as well offsets and credits, 25 the amount of back pay owed, if any would be minuscule. Thus, liability under the UCL is disputed as well as the amount of any restitution owed thereon.

26 Based on the foregoing, it is respectfully submitted by the proposed settlement resolves 27 several bona fide disputes that all necessarily affect the existence and extent of Defendants’ alleged 28 liability during the relevant claim periods.

1 C. The Terms Of The Proposed Settlement Are Fair, Just, And Reasonable.

2 The proposed settlement warrants approval under the FLSA and Rule 23 because it is fair, 3 just, and reasonable. Once it is established that there is a bona fide dispute, courts often apply the 4 Rule 23 factors for assessing proposed class action settlements when evaluating the fairness of an 5 FLSA settlement, while recognizing some of those factors do not apply because of the inherent 6 differences between class actions and FLSA actions. (Khanna v. Inter-Con Sec. Sys., Inc., No. CIV 7 S-09-2214 KJM, 2013 WL 1193485, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Mar. 22, 2013).) Courts in this circuit have 8 balanced factors such as:

9 “the strength of the plaintiffs’ case; the risk, expense, complexity, 10 and likely duration of further litigation; the risk of maintaining class 11 action status throughout the trial; the amount offered in settlement; 12 the extent of discovery completed and the stage of the proceedings; 13 the experience and views of counsel; the presence of a governmental 14 participant; and the reaction of the class members to the proposed 15 settlement.”

16 (Khanna v. Intercon Sec. Sys., Inc., No. 2:09-CV-2214 KJM EFB, 2014 WL 1379861, at *6 (E.D.
 17 Cal. Apr. 8, 2014), order corrected, No. 2:09-CV-2214 KJM EFB, 2015 WL 925707 (E.D. Cal.
 18 Mar. 3, 2015).) With this approach, a “district court must ultimately be satisfied that the 19 settlement’s overall effect is to vindicate, rather than frustrate, the purposes of the FLSA.” (Id.) 20 Settlements that reflect a fair and reasonable compromise of issues that are actually in dispute may 21 be approved to promote the efficiency of encouraging settlement of litigation. (McKeen-Chaplin 22 v. Franklin Am. Mortg. Co., No. C 10-5243 SBA, 2012 WL 6629608, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 19, 23 2012).)

24 The parties’ proposed settlement agreement was reached through a non-collusive process 25 that produced terms that are fair, just and reasonable. Indeed, the parties worked together to revise 26 the initial settlement agreement to incorporate the Court’s suggestions at the preliminary approval 27 hearing to ensure the terms of the agreement were fair. As such, the Court should approve it.

28 1. The Proposed Settlement Is Entitled to a Presumption of Fairness Because 29 it Was Reached Through Arm’s-Length, Non-Collusive, and Informed 30 Negotiations

1 While the proponent of a settlement as the burden of showing it is fair and reasonable, 2 courts generally recognize a presumption of fairness where the settlement agreement is the result
 3 of arm's-length bargaining. (Wershba v. Apple Computers, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal.App.4th 224, 245.)
 4 "This circuit has long deferred to the private consensual decision of the parties." (Rodriguez v. W.
 5 Publ'g Corp., 563 F.3d 948, 965 (9th Cir. 2009).) A court's intrusion upon what is otherwise a 6 private consensual agreement negotiated between the parties to a lawsuit must be limited to the 7 extent necessary to reach a reasoned conclusion that judgment that the agreement is not the product 8 of fraud or overreaching by, or collusion between, the negotiating parties, and that the settlement, 9 taken as a whole, is fair, reasonable and adequate to all concerned. (Officers for Justice v. Civil 10 Service Com'n of City and County of San Francisco 688 F.2d 615, 625 (9th Cir. 1982).) The 11 proposed settlement is the non-collusive product of hard-fought litigation.

12 The proposed settlement resulted only after extensive, arms-length settlement negotiations 13 that were conducted after rigorous discovery and review of time and payroll records regarding the 14 merits and damages of the disputed claims under the supervision of experienced mediator Timothy 15 Long. (Mastagni Decl., ¶¶11-14.)

16 "The likelihood of fraud or collusion is low . . . [when] the Settlement was reached through 17 arm's-length negotiations, facilitated by an impartial mediator." (Slezak v. City of Palo Alto, Case 18 No. 16-CV-03224-LHK, 2017 WL 2688224, at *5, (N.D. Cal. June 22, 2017).) Timothy Long was 19 actively involved in the negotiation of the parties' proposed settlement and significantly 20 contributed to achieving this global accord. There is no evidence of fraud, collusion, or self-21 interest.

22 Additionally, the parties changed the terms relating to the distribution of unclaimed funds 23 in response to a suggestion the Court made at the preliminary approval hearing in this case. At the 24 hearing, the Court suggested any unclaimed funds be distributed back to the class members who 25 filed claim forms, on a pro rata basis. In response to this request, the parties revised the Settlement 26 to do just that. (See Exh. A., pp. 2-3.)

27

28

1 As a result of all the work they performed, Class counsel firmly believes the proposed 2 settlement represents a very favorable resolution of the claims in this case. Accordingly, this factor 3 also weighs in favor of approval.

4 2. The Proposed Settlement Falls Within The Range of Possible Recovery

5 Under the terms of the Settlement Agreement, Defendants will pay Collective Action and 6 California Class members a total sum of $345,000.00 to resolve their claims under the FLSA and 7 their derivative claims arising under the Labor Code and the UCL. This amount was reached based 8 on Class Counsel's review of the discovery and their calculations which assumed they would 9 prevail on all issues balanced against Defendants' position that any liability, if it existed, was 10 almost completely exhausted by offsets and credits which would eliminate any liability for 11 derivative state law claims. The parties believe the two settlement allocations are consistent with 12 and within the range of total potential recovery if this matter proceeded to trial when accounting 13 for the differing statute of limitations between the Opt-In Plaintiffs and the Putative Plaintiffs.
 14 (Tate Dec., ¶¶27, 28.)

15 Plaintiff's claim that four items of remuneration were unlawfully excluded from the regular 16 rate remains unclear and, depending on how a court would rule, would create varying degrees of 17 potential liability even before considering the additional issues that affect the actual individual 18 recovery. Of significant impact, as discussed above, the Parties dispute the application of credits 19 and offsets pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 207(h)(2) which potentially could eliminate almost all 20 liability.

21 The settlement provides Plaintiff and the class members prompt, certain, and favorable 22 resolution of this issue for their respective claim periods. Absent this compromise, the dispute over 23 the application of credits under the FLSA could reduce or even eliminate Plaintiff's recovery if 24 the Court were to resolve this issue in Defendants' favor. Damages could be further reduced if a 25 two-year rather than a three-year statute of limitations could apply, or if liquidated damages were 26 not awarded by the Court. These issues significantly affect the total liability regardless of the offset 27 and credit methodology applied. A denial of liquidated damages alone would reduce the range of 28 Plaintiffs' recovery by 50%. (Tate Dec., ¶19.) Without a three-year statute of limitations, the range

1 of Plaintiffs' recovery would be reduced by about 33%. (Tate Dec., ¶20.) Finally, with respect to 2 PAGA, even though the statute provides significant penalties, these can be reduced in the 3 discretion of the court if based on the facts and circumstances of the particular case, to do otherwise 4 would result in an award that is unjust, arbitrary and oppressive, or confiscatory. (Cal. Lab. Code 5 §2699(e)(2).)

6 The proposed settlement affords the class members prompt, substantial relief, while 7 avoiding significant legal and factual hurdles that otherwise may have prevented the Plaintiff from 8 obtaining as favorable a recovery. While Class Counsel believes the collective action and class 9 claims are meritorious, they are experienced and realistic, and understand that the resolution of the 10 foregoing and other key issues, the outcome of a trial, and the outcome of any appeals that may 11 follow are inherently uncertain in terms of both outcome and duration. Accordingly, this factor 12 weighs in favor of approval of the proposed settlement because the interests of the class are better 13 served by settlement than the attendant risks of further litigation.

3. The Amount Of Discovery Conducted At This Stage Confirms The Parties Made An Informed Decision Prior To Entering Into The Proposed Settlement

16 As noted above, Class Counsel vigorously investigated the claims asserted against 17 Defendants. Courts assess the stage of the proceedings and the amount of discovery completed to 18 ensure that parties have an adequate appreciation of the merits of the case before reaching a 19 settlement. (See Ontiveros v. Zamora, 303 F.R.D. 356, 371 (E.D. Cal. 2014) (“A settlement that 20 occurs in an advanced stage of the proceedings indicates that the parties carefully investigated the 21 claims before reaching a resolution.”).) As long as the parties have “sufficient information to make 22 an informed decision about settlement,” this factor will weigh in favor of approval. (Linney v.
23 Cellular Alaska P’ship, 151 F.3d 1234, 1239 (9th Cir. 1998).) Here, Class Counsel have sufficient 24 information to make an informed decision regarding settlement. Specifically, Class Counsel 25 received significant informal discovery before and after the action was filed (i.e., time and payroll 26 records), essentially all that was needed to form an adequate appreciation of the merits of the 27 disputed issues and calculating the potential liability thereon before reaching the proposed

1 settlement. (Mastagni Dec. ¶¶11, 12.) Accordingly, this factor also weighs in favor of preliminary 2 approval of the proposed settlement.

3 4. Plaintiffs Face Inherent Risks if Litigation Continues

4 To assess the fairness, adequacy, and reasonableness of a class action settlement, the Court 5 must weigh the immediacy and certainty of substantial settlement proceeds against the risks 6 inherent in continued litigation. Settlement is favored where “there is a significant risk that 7 litigation might result in a lesser recover[y] for the class or no recovery at all.” (Bellinghausen v.
 8 Tractor Supply Co., 306 F.R.D. 245, 255 (N.D. Cal. 2015).) This factor supports granting final 9 approval for the settlement.

10 As discussed in greater detail above, liability is not certain, and there are multiple variables 11 that could impact the calculation of damages in this case if any of the disputed items were 12 determined to be required to be included in the regular rate. For example, a ruling that the 13 Christmas Award is not includable in the regular would completely eliminate damages based on 14 the Defendants’ exclusion of Christmas award payments. The same is true with respect to each of 15 the other pay items. Likewise, the Defendants have asserted other defenses that could completely 16 eliminate or significantly reduce the Plaintiff’s damages, including defenses based on the 17 applicable statute of limitations, and the application of offsets and credits. These concerns pose a 18 risk to Plaintiffs that could eliminate or reduce their individual recovery.

19 Defendants’ counsel, Epstein Becker, is a well-respected firm with substantial experience 20 litigating class action wage and hour disputes.

21 In addition, a class-wide trial would likely last several weeks at minimum, and involve 22 party, class-member, expert and percipient witness testimony. As with all trials, there is 23 considerable risk for either party. If Plaintiff was to succeed in certifying the class, keeping the 24 case certified and prevailing at a class-action trial, in a case of this magnitude, the resulting money 25 judgment would likely be subject to many rounds of appeals, where, again, both sides would face 26 considerable risk. The class members still would not have yet received any money during the 27 appeal process, and Class Counsel could spend years defending its trial court judgment in possibly 28 several rounds of appeal. When presented with a six-figure settlement that will benefit a large

1 group of individuals in the very near future, the risk of an unfavorable judgment after potentially 2 years of litigation, must be candidly recognized and evaluated. Accordingly, this factor also weighs 3 in favor of approval of settlement.

4 5. The Experience And Views Of Class Counsel Weigh In Favor Of Settlement Approval

5 In determining whether a settlement is fair and reasonable, “[t]he opinions of counsel 6 should be given considerable weight both because of counsel’s familiarity with th[e] litigation and 7 previous experience with cases.” (Larsen v. Trader Joe’s Co., 2014 WL 3404531, *5 (N.D. Cal.
 8 Jul. 11, 2014).) Here, Class Counsel David Mastagni asserted the terms of the settlement 9 agreement are fair and reasonable, and that the settlement amount is within the possible range that 10 Plaintiffs could expect to recover if this matter were to proceed to trial. (Mastagni Dec., ¶13.)
 11 David Mastagni has years of experience litigating FLSA and state wages and hour claims, settled 12 them and obtained court approval of those settlements. (Mastagni Dec., ¶¶2-4.) As such, his 13 evaluation of the case is reliable. Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of approving the 14 proposed settlement.

15
 16 6. There Is No Government Participant In This Litigation

17 There is no government participant in this action. However, the proposed settlement 18 provides for the payment of $20,000.00 to the LWDA. This approximates the total amount that 19 would be due on any penalties that would be assessed by the Court pursuant to PAGA for the Opt-20 In Plaintiffs and Putative Plaintiffs. This amount represents approximately 3.9% of the total 21 settlement amount and is reasonable. (See Roberts v. Marshalls of CA, LLC, Case No. 13-cv-22 04731-MEJ, 2018 WL 510286 (approving payment to LWDA that was less than 1% of the total 23 settlement amount) See also Cotter v. Lyft 193 F.Supp.3d 1030, 1037 (N.D. Cal. 2016)(court 24 approving settlement where PAGA penalty portion represented only 3.7% of total settlement based 25 on unclear legal obligations as well as court’s discretion to reduce penalties based on Cal. Lab. Code 26 § 2699(e)(2)) As such, this factor weighs in favor of preliminary approval of the proposed 27 settlement.

7. The Scope Of The Release Provision In The Settlement Agreement Is Appropriate

The scope of the release of claims in the proposed settlement agreement is appropriate.

“A FLSA release should not go beyond the specific FLSA claims at issue in the lawsuit itself.” (Slezak, 2017 WL 2688224, at *5.) Expansive release of claims would allow employers to unfairly extract valuable concessions from employees using wages that they are guaranteed by statute. (See Moreno v. Regions Bank, 729 F.Supp.2d 1346, 1351 (M.D. Fla. 2010) (“An employee who executes a broad release effectively gambles, exchanging unknown rights for a few hundred or a few thousand dollars to which he is otherwise unconditionally entitled.”).)

Here, the release is limited to the claims alleged in the Complaint. (See Ex. A, Paragraph 11.) While this release extends to all claims known and unknown (Ex. A, Paragraph 12), this is a common provision in settlement agreements and the Parties agree that such broad language only covers those claims related to those raised in the Complaint. Neither Opt-In Plaintiffs nor Putative Plaintiffs release their FLSA claims if they do not opt-in. (Ex. A Paragraph 13.) Finally, while the issues with respect to the regular rate may be undecided, FLSA Collective Action Members and Rule 23 California Class members are only agreeing to release any related claims through the date the proposed settlement agreement was executed. As such, this factor also approving the proposed settlement.

8. The Proposed Cost Of Settlement Administration Is Appropriate

The proposed settlement provided for an estimated payment of $15,000 to the Settlement Administrator, with any additional expenses paid by the Defendants. This anticipated cost represents less than 3% of the total gross settlement amount of $515,000.00. The proposed Settlement provides that if the costs of the Settlement Administrator were below this estimated amount, it shall revert to the Opt-In Plaintiffs on a pro-rata basis. (Ex. A Paragraph 1(f).) Further, the proposed agreement provides that if costs of the Settlement Administrator exceeds the proposed cost, Defendants shall bear the expense of these expenses and shall not be taken from the gross settlement amount. As set forth in the declaration the Settlement Administrator submitted in support of this motion, the Settlement Administrator will pay itself the initial $15,000 of the administration

1 expense from the Settlement Fund, and invoice the remaining costs to the Defendants.
 2 (Administrator Dec., ¶ 22.) Accordingly, this factor weighs in favor of approval of the proposed 3 settlement.

4 D. The Proposed Settlement Distribution Is Fair And Reasonable

5 As described above, the proposed plan for distribution takes into account a variety of 6 factors to ensure that the settlement allocation among members of the respective group is fair and 7 accurate. To balance the goals of fairness and efficiency, the parties have agreed that the Plaintiffs'
 8 allocation of their group's FLSA settlement will be pro rata, i.e. based on the number overtime 9 hours each individual worked beyond the statutory threshold and their receipt of Incentives during 10 the respective claim period.

11 Because liability is premised on the allegation that the incentive payments should have 12 resulted in an incremental increase in the regular rate for purposes of calculating and paying 13 overtime, this allocation methodology fairly compensates each individual based on the number of 14 overtime hours worked and the Incentives they received during the respective claim period. This 15 method also ensures the risk of litigation with respect to the disputed legal issues as set forth above 16 is borne equally among the recipients in each group while fairly acknowledging the individual 17 employment circumstances of the recipient relative to the other members of their respective group.
 18 The portion of the respective settlement amounts allocated to the derivative state law claims will 19 also be divided among the recipients on a pro-rata basis according to the number of weeks they 20 worked above the statutory threshold during the respective claim period. This method is fair as 21 well because each group incurred comparable damages¹⁰ when they worked above the overtime 22 threshold irrespective of the amount of the alleged underpayment during the workweek based on 23 the disputed issues for these claims.

24 The difference between the gross recovery of the Opt-In Plaintiffs and the Putative 25 Plaintiffs relates to their respective potential claims periods. Opt-In Plaintiffs had the benefit of 26 being covered by a tolling agreement for approximately ten months prior the filing of the action 27

28 ¹⁰ Violation of California Labor Code §§204, 221-223 and 226 are not measured by the amount of wage damage for an initial violation.

1 and opted into the action soon after it was filed. When this action was filed, the only claims of 2 Putative Plaintiffs that were tolled were their state law claims. (American Pipe and Construction 3 Co. v. Utah, 414 U.S. 538 (1974).) Putative Plaintiffs' statute limitations continued to run on their 4 claims under the FLSA even after the action was filed¹¹. Their FLSA claims were not tolled until 5 October 2017 by agreement of the Parties. Therefore, an Opt-In Plaintiff's claim period under the 6 FLSA is 19 months longer than a Putative Plaintiff's, and is more valuable for the purposes of the 7 FLSA. Thus, the difference in gross recovery between the two groups accounts for the difference 8 in the legal value of their claims with respect to the statute of limitations.

9 Accordingly, this plan of distribution is fair, objective, and will reasonably approximate 10 the relative damages suffered by Collective Action and California Class members based on the 11 disputed legal issues, the factual issues affecting their potential individual damages, as well as the 12 respective statute of limitations applicable to their FLSA and state law claims.

13 E. The Class Received Adequate Notice

14 The manner of giving notice and the content of the notice must "fairly apprise the 15 prospective members of the class of the terms of the proposed settlement and of the options that are 16 open to them in connection with the proceedings." (7-Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising v.
 17 Southland Corp. (2001) 85 Cal.App.4th 1135, 1164.) Notice is appropriate if it has a "reasonable 18 chance of reaching a substantial percentage of the class members." (Wershba, supra 91 Cal.App.4th 19 at 251.) Here, the Court-approved notice adequately protected the due process rights of all class 20 members.

21 Rust Consulting successfully implemented the Court-approved notice plan, with only 24 of 22 the 438 packets sent being returned as undeliverable. This means approximately 94% of the class
 23 received notice. This rate is on the high end of the norm for a notice's reach – i.e. the percentage 24 of class members who receive or are otherwise exposed to a notice, which normally ranges from 25
 26

27 ¹¹ "Unlike Rule 23 class actions, the filing of an FLSA complaint does not toll the statute of limitations. Instead, 28 the statute of limitations continues to run on each plaintiff's claim until the plaintiff files his or her consent to opt in to the action. 29 U.S.C. § 256." (Brittmon v. Upreach, LLC 285 F.Supp.3d 1033 (S.D. Ohio 2018).)

1 70-95% of the class. (See Federal Judicial Center, Managing Class Action Litigation: A Pocket
 2 Guide for Judges Third Ed. (2010) at p. 27.)

3 The notice materials provided a brief, clear, and thorough explanation of the case, the terms 4 of the proposed settlement, the maximum amount Class Counsel could seek for attorney fees, the 5 amount Mr. Strong could receive as a service award, and the date, time, and place of the final 6 approval hearing, and the steps for class members to follow or opt out or object to the settlement.
 7 The notice also described how to appear at the final hearing to object.

8 Additionally, as required by the Court's order granting preliminary approval of the 9 settlement, Class Counsel created and maintained a website, which provided the pleadings file, 10 information about the case, and up to date information about the date and time of the settlement
 11 hearing. (Stevens Decl., ¶ 17.)

12 The notice plan was carefully tailored to reach a substantial percentage of class members 13 and fairly apprise them of the settlement. Given the high percentage of notices delivered, the plan 14 was a success. For the above reasons, the Court should find the notice was reasonable and satisfied 15 due process and the requirements of California law.

16 E. Settlement Class Members Have Acted Favorably

17 A court may infer that a class action settlement is fair, adequate, and reasonable when few 18 class members object to it. (Lealao v. Beneficial California, Inc. (2000) 82 Cal.App.4th 19, 51.)
 19 The Court may even approve a class action settlement despite a large number of objections. (See, 20 e.g., Class Plaintiffs v. City of Seattle (9th Cir. 1992) 955 F.2d 1268, 1291-96.) Settlement class 21 members were given a reasonable opportunity to object to the settlement. No objections were filed.
 22 (Administrator Decl., ¶ 20.) Moreover, the response rate to the settlement has been significant. Of 23 the 438 packets mailed out, 177 claim forms were returned. (Administrator Decl., ¶¶ 15-18.) This 24 represents a response rate exceeding 40%. As such, the class members' reaction to the settlement 25 supports approving this settlement.

26 V. THE REQUESTED AWARD OF ATTORNEY FEES TO CLASS COUNSEL IS REASONABLE

27 Class Counsel's request for attorney fees, costs, a class representative award, and claims 28 administration fees is fair, reasonable, and adequate, so the Court should grant it. Class Counsel

1 achieved an excellent settlement in this case, providing a substantial benefit to the class members.
 2 No objections were received to the settlement or Class counsel's requests for fees, costs,
 3 administrative fees, and an incentive award. (Administrator Decl., ¶ 20.)

4 Class Counsel seeks and order from this Court awarding attorney fees and costs; a class 5 representative incentive award; and costs of administrating the settlement.

6 A. Class Counsel's Requested Attorney Fees and Costs Should be Granted as Fair and Reasonable

7 “Where a proposed settlement of FLSA claims includes the payment of attorney’s fees, the 8 court must also assess the reasonableness of the fee award.” (Selk v. Pioneers Memorial Healthcare Dist., 159 F.Supp.3d 1164, 1180 (2016); see also 29 U.S.C. § 216(b) (providing that, 10 in an FLSA action, the court shall “allow a reasonable attorney’s fee to be paid by the defendant, 11 and costs of the action”)). “Under Ninth Circuit law, the district court has discretion in common 12 fund cases to choose either the percentage-of-the-fund or the lodestar method for awarding 13 attorneys’ fees.” (Vizcaino v. Microsoft Corp., 290 F.3d 1043, 1047 (9th Cir. 2002).) The Ninth 14 Circuit has generally set a 25% benchmark for the award of attorneys’ fees in common fund cases.
 15 (Id. at 1047-48; see also In Re Bluetooth Headset Products Liability, 654 F.3d 935, 942 (9th Cir.
 16 2011).) The Ninth Circuit has approved the use of lodestar cross-checks as a way of determining 17 the reasonableness of a particular percentage recovery. (Id. at 1050.) Similarly, the California 18 Supreme Court has sanctioned the same method as a cross-check for resolving claims under state 19 law. (Lafitte v. Robert Half. Intern. Co., 1 Cal.5th 480, 506 (2016).)

20 Pursuant to the proposed settlement, Class Counsel will be paid $125,000.00 in attorney 21 fees and costs. (Ex. A paragraph 1(e).) Any reduction of this proposed fee would revert to the Opt-22 In Plaintiffs. Thus, the proposed attorney fee represents approximately only 23.3% of the 23 $515,000.00 gross settlement amount after subtracting costs. Therefore, this fee is presumptively 24 reasonable.

25 Further, calculation of the lodestar amount confirms the reasonableness of this award.
 26 Prevailing parties are entitled to receive an award of fees for all hours reasonably expended at rates 27 in line with the “prevailing market rate of the relevant community.” (Carson v. Billings Police 28

1 Dept., 470 F.3d 889, 891 (9th Cir. 2006).) In Bellinghausen v. Tractor Supply Co. 306 F.R.D. 245
 2 (N.D. Cal. 2015) the court concluded that rates of $650 for partners, $400 for senior associates and 3 $375 for junior associates were reasonable. (Id. at 264.) Here, the attorney fees and costs provided 4 by the proposed settlement are well below those that would be provided to a prevailing party in a 5 wage and hour action in the Northern District if the fee award was calculated based upon the hours 6 expended at the prevailing rates. The following hours were necessary and reasonably incurred in 7 the pursuit of Plaintiff's claims.

	NAME	TITLE	YEARS	HOURS	RATE	LODESTAR
9	David E. Mastagni, Esq. ¹²	Partner	18	34.2	$600	$20,520
10	Isaac S. Stevens, Esq. ¹³	Attorney, Sr. Associate	10	82.8	$400	$33,120
11	Ace T. Tate, Esq. ¹⁴	Attorney, Associate	9	442.1	$375	$165,787.50
12	Michael Lee	Forensic Accountant		145.74	$250	$36,435
13	Toni L. Scannell ¹⁵	Forensic Accountant		285.08	$175	$49,889
14	Patrick R. Barbieri	Paralegal	9	17.5	$150	$2,625
15	Total			695.95		$308,376.50

16 Applying the rates for this type of litigation in the Northern District to just the three primary 17 attorneys yields a fee of $219,427.40, exclusive of support staff and accounting staff. Instead, Class 18 Counsel, will seek approval of a substantially reduced amount ($118,625.60) for all firm time 19 reasonably expended on this matter at the final approval hearing. This time does not include any 20 time expended by Class Counsel's in house accounting staff analyzing time and payroll records, 21 which is reflected above in the entries for Toni L. Scannell and Michael Lee. In light of the 22 percentage and the lodestar cross-check, the proposed attorney fee is most certainly reasonable.

23
 25 ¹² Declaration of David E. Mastagni Support of Plaintiff's Motion for Certification of Class and Collective Action 26 and Class Representative; Appointment of Collective and Class Counsel; Final Approval of Settlement (Supp.
 27 Mastagni Decl., ¶ 7. (Submitted concurrently herewith.)

28 ¹³ Stevens Decl., ¶ 14.

29 ¹⁴ Declaration of Ace T. Tate in Support of Attorney Fees, ¶ 7. (Submitted concurrently herewith.)

30 ¹⁵ Declaration of Toni Scannell in Support of Plaintiff's Motion for Certification of Class and Collective Action and 31 Class Representative; Appointment of Collective and Class Counsel; Final Approval of Settlement (Scannell Decl.), ¶ 32 5, 7.) (Submitted concurrently herewith.)

1 Additionally, Class Counsel incurred $6,374.40 in costs. Of the $6,374.40 incurred in this 2 case, $4,777.50 was for the cost of mediating the case. The remainder of the costs incurred related 3 to copy costs, postage, filing fees, travel, messenger service, and court call fees. This amount was 4 reasonable, especially given the size of the class involved in the case.

5 VI. THE INCENTIVE AWARD TO PLAINTIFF STRONG IS REASONABLE

6 Under the proposed settlement agreement, $10,000 is to be awarded to Class 7 Representative Ray Strong for his efforts in bringing this case. Incentive awards are particularly 8 appropriate in wage-and-hour actions where plaintiffs undertake a significant “reputational risk” 9 by bringing suit against their employers. (Rodriguez v. West Publishing Corp. 563 F.3d 948, 958– 10 59 (9th Cir. 2009).) A class representative must justify an incentive award through “evidence 11 demonstrating the quality of plaintiff’s representative service,” such as “substantial efforts taken 12 as class representative to justify the discrepancy between [his] award and those of the unnamed 13 plaintiffs.” (Alberto v. GMRI, Inc., 252 F.R.D. 652, 669 (E.D.Cal.2008).) In the Northern District, 14 $5,000 is presumptively reasonable. (Bellinghausen, supra at 266.) However, an award above this 15 amount is appropriate when examining the time and effort expended by a class representative for 16 the benefit of the class.

17 Class Representative Strong was instrumental in prosecuting this action and was an 18 important source of information during the course of this litigation. He has been deeply involved 19 in this case since its beginning. (See Strong Dec.) Class Representative Strong has devoted a 20 substantial amount of time to helping Class Counsel effectively develop and prosecute this action 21 at every stage of the litigation. (Strong Dec, ¶¶4, 6, 9, 10.) Plaintiff Strong provided documents 22 and factual background to his counsel, frequently discussed these issues in preparation for filing a 23 complaint, spoke with potential class members about their experiences working for Defendants, 24 prepared for and attended the mediation in Sacramento. (Ibid.) Plaintiff Strong’s participation was 25 an essential element that allowed Class Counsel to settle the Collective Action and California Class 26 claims of approximately 270 individuals in a fair, adequate and reasonable manner. (Mastagni Dec.
 27 ¶25.) Moreover, Class Representative Strong made his name public by agreeing to pursue this 28 lawsuit, thereby risking potential stigma. Class Representative Strong diligently, adequately, and

1 fairly represented the Collective Action and California class members, and has not placed his 2 interests above any member thereof. As a result, the incentive award provided by the proposed 3 settlement agreement should not prohibit this Court from granting preliminary approval.

4 VII. CY PRES AWARDEES

5 The proposed settlement agreement does not provide for any portion of the GSA to be 6 given to a cy pres awardee.

7 VIII. CLASS ACTION FAIRNESS ACT

8 The proposed settlement agreement does not implicate any duties on the parties or this 9 Court regarding the Class Action Fairness Act.

10 IX. CONCLUSION

11 For all of the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff respectfully asks the Court to certify this case 12 as a collective action and a class action, and grant final approval of the parties' settlement.

14 Respectfully submitted,
